Rico Understands You

A member of the American Kennel Club said it proves people who talk to their dogs are not crazy — but are “cutting-edge communicators.” Researchers in Germany said they’ve found a border collie named Rico who can understand more than 200 words — and can learn new ones as quickly as many children, the journal Science reported. One skeptic said while children can understand words in a variety of contexts, Rico’s understanding seems only to be part of his fetching behavior. (AP)

ON THE ROAD

A Bloody Mess

Not since those gruesome movies in driver’s ed class has there been this much blood on the highway. A truck hauling pig blood from the Netherlands for disposal was pulling onto the autobahn near Sittensen, Germany, from a rest stop when it was rear-ended by another truck Wednesday. Police closed a stretch of superhighway for hours after the truck spilled 9,000 gallons of pig’s blood. No major injuries were reported, but the highway shutdown created traffic jams 13 miles long on either side. (AP)

Devilish Hero

Ben-Hur Pereira was dressed as a devil but became the guardian angel of a teenager dangling from a four-passenger gondola on a Ferris wheel. Pereira, who works as a devil in the “Ghost House” at the Groena Lund amusement park in Stockholm, Sweden, had stepped out of the attraction Wednesday and saw the 16-year-old boy hanging 30 feet above the ground and holding tight to the gondola. Pereira, a trained acrobat, scaled the Ferris wheel, reached the teenager and pushed him back inside the gondola. (AP)

Having a Ball

When advertising an upcoming event, some groups use newspapers, others billboards and still others pass out fliers or hang posters. People behind the Euro 2004 soccer championship apparently decided to go another route in Jakarta, Indonesia: dancers with soccer-ball bedecked hats. Dressed like a cross between David Beckham and Chef Boyardee, the performers, positioned in the city’s main traffic roundabout, were meant to stir up enthusiasm for the soccer tournament, which begins this weekend in Lisbon, Portugal. Teams from all over Europe are converging on the Portuguese capital for three weeks of games. (EXPRESS)

Saudi Student Cleared of Web Terror

BOISE, IDAHO | A Saudi graduate student was acquitted Thursday of charges that he used his computer expertise to foster terrorism.

The case against Sami Omar Al-Hussayen, 34, was seen as an important test of a provision of the Patriot Act anti-terrorism law that makes it a crime to provide expert advice or assistance to terrorists.

Al-Hussayen, a computer science student at the University of Idaho, was acquitted on all three terrorism counts, as well as one count of making a false statement and two counts of visa fraud. Jurors could not reach verdicts on three more false statement counts and five additional visa fraud counts, and a mistrial was declared on those charges.

Al-Hussayen set up and ran Web sites that prosecutors say were used to recruit terrorists, raise money and push inflammatory rhetoric.

His defense maintained that his association with the Web sites was as a Muslim volunteer and computer expert who simply wanted to keep the sites in operation.

But prosecutors cited religious edicts justifying suicide bombings and an invitation to financially support the militant Palestinian organization Hamas in arguing against Al-Hussayen. BOB FICK (AP)

Candy Makers Go Low-Cal

Confectioners appeal to dieters with array of 'guilt-free' sweets

CHICAGO | Call it Candy Lite.

Long viewed as a slightly naughty self-indulgence, candy is getting a makeover as companies try to concoct sweets that are a little healthier.

From low-carb to low-cal to sugar-free to "guilt-free," many of the estimated 1,400 new products on the market this year come with a health pitch of some kind. And the array of soon-to-be-released offerings on display at this week's All Candy Expo, North America's largest candy trade show, demonstrates the pro-health movement is just getting rolling.

So far the strategy appears to be working. Sales of "diet candy," the industry's feel-good term for sugar-free and reduced-carb sweets, soared 90 percent to more than $273 million last year as overweight Americans fretted more about nutrition and health.

Sugar-lovers, relax — it's not all about health. Low-carb or sugar-free items still comprise just a fraction of the $24 billion-a-year industry. And gobs of teeth-tingling sugar candies still commanded attention at the three-day trade show, which ended Thursday. DAVE CARPENTER (AP)

Albanese Confectionery Group's Zeros are one of some 1,400 diet-minded offerings at the All Candy Expo in Chicago.

Suffocation Leads in Youth Suicides

ATLANTA | Hanging and other forms of suffocation have overtaken guns as the chief means of suicide among American youngsters 10 to 14 years old, the government said Thursday.

Researchers from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention were surprised by the switch and said they first noticed the trend in the early 1990s. By the end of the decade, suffocations had surpassed self-inflicted shootings.

There were 96 suicides by suffocation among Americans 10 to 14 years old in 1992, the CDC said. That rose to 163 in 2001. Firearm suicides dropped from 172 to 90 during the same period.

Health officials said they do not know why the switch occurred and whether it had anything to do with the use of trigger locks and other gun safety measures.

Overall, the suicide rate for those ages 10 to 19 fell by about a quarter, from 6.2 deaths per 100,000 people in 1992 to 4.6 per 100,000 in 2001, the CDC said. (AP)

Bush: NATO Troops Not Likely in Iraq

G-8 summit ends with a rash of initiatives, a nod to resistant allies

SAVANNAH, GA. | President Bush conceded Thursday that it was unrealistic to expect NATO countries to send more troops to Iraq, after European leaders expressed resistance to the idea.

But he made a parting plea to world leaders wrapping up a three-day summit of the powerful Group of Eight nations to do what they can to guide Iraq into a stable democracy.

"They need our help, and they will have our help," Bush said at a news conference here concluding the summit on nearby Sea Island, Ga.

French President Jacques Chirac ruled out the possibility of a direct military role for NATO in Iraq, while German Chancellor Gerhard Schroeder was also opposed to Bush's initial suggestion. TOM RAUM (AP)

CLOSING OUT THE G-8

The leaders reached modest agreements on other issues:

- ENDORSED A PROPOSAL to train and where necessary equip 75,000 new peacekeepers, primarily to assist in Africa, over the next five years.
- BACKED A U.S. PROPOSAL to accelerate development of an HIV vaccine through better coordination of global efforts. The United States pledged $15 million to launch the effort. (AP)

SECOND FRONT: Shiite gunmen loyal to radical cleric Muqtada al-Sadr prepare to fight U.S. forces in Baghdad's Sadr City on Thursday. At least one militant was shot and killed as he prepared to fire a rocket-propelled grenade at U.S. troops.

Najaf Fighting Imperils Truce

Radical cleric's loyalists overrun police station

BAGHDAD | Shiite gunmen loyal to radical cleric Muqtada al-Sadr ransacked an Iraqi police station Thursday in the holy city of Najaf, threatening a truce that had held for nearly a week. U.S. troops refused to intervene in the fighting, in which six Iraqis died.

U.S. Maj. Gen. Martin Dempsey said U.S. troops were held back partly because the fighting was too close to Shiite shrines.

Dempsey told CNN that Iraqi police, who deserted when al-Sadr's rebellion began in April, fought well despite losing control of a station. He said it was too early to tell whether the truce, mediated by Shiite clerics and politicians to end nearly eight weeks of fighting, had collapsed.

But the U.S.-appointed governor of Najaf province, Adnan al-Zurufi, warned that if the violence continued "there won't be a truce."

Al-Sadr's spokesman, Qais Al-Khazali, warned al-Zurufi against "following the Americans."

The trouble started Wednesday night when police tried to arrest suspected thieves near police headquarters, witnesses said. Masked attackers, including some of al-Sadr's militia, responded with gunfire and rocket-propelled grenades.

One gunman was killed when police returned fire, al-Khazali said. The man's relatives, said by authorities to be from al-Sadr's militia, attacked the headquarters again Thursday in revenge, he said.

"We are trying to convince them to stop shooting," al-Khazali said. "We are still committed to the truce." ROBERT H. REID (AP)

The Israeli government plans to offer financial incentives to Israeli settlers who leave the Gaza Strip voluntarily, officials said Thursday. #### Suspects in Reporter's Death Acquitted by Moscow Court

A court on Thursday acquitted all six defendants in the 1994 killing of Dmitry Kholodov, a journalist who exposed corruption in the military. Investigators said that former Defense Minister Pavel Grachev ordered one suspect to "deal with" the reporter; Grachev insisted it was not an order to kill Kholodov, who died when a briefcase he picked up after an anonymous call blew up. Most of the suspects served in an elite commando unit. (AP)

11 Chinese Gunned Down in Afghanistan

JALAW GIR, AFGHANISTAN | The slaughter of 11 sleeping Chinese road workers Thursday was the deadliest attack on foreign civilians since the fall of the Taliban, and dealt a blow to U.S. claims that Afghanistan is becoming safer ahead of milestone elections this fall.

The Chinese were attacked just after midnight at a camp where about 100 of them stay in a patch of desert near Jalaw Gir, 120 miles north of Kabul. Six to eight assailants killed an Afghan guard at the unfenced camp and then raked the Chinese men with a hail of rifle fire, said Mutaleb Beg, the Kunduz police chief.

The assault in the relatively tranquil north underlined the dangers for thousands of foreigners helping to rebuild Afghanistan, where President Hamid Karzai's U.S.-backed government is fighting off an insurgency by Taliban rebels and their al Qaeda allies. Aid workers warned the bloodshed could prompt a further pullback of their activities to the capital, Kabul.

The United Nations condemned the "cold-blooded" attack in Kunduz province and halted registration of voters there until at least Saturday — a further setback in preparations for the September elections. (AP)

U.S. Probes Plot to Kill Saudi

Libya's Gadhafi accused in assassination scheme

WASHINGTON | A jailed American Muslim leader and a Libyan intelligence agent have told U.S. and Saudi authorities they were involved in a Libyan plot to assassinate the ruler of Saudi Arabia, U.S. officials said Thursday.

The allegations are viewed as credible by U.S. authorities but investigators still are trying to determine if the plot was real and, if so, whether Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi was involved, according to two U.S. officials who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The alleged plot against Crown Prince Abdullah was revealed separately by Abduraham Alamoudi, who is jailed in Alexandria, Va., on federal charges of having illegal financial dealings with Libya; and Col. Mohamed Ismael, a Libyan intelligence officer in Saudi custody.

Relations between Libya and Saudi Arabia, tense for years, hit a low in March 2003 when Gadhafi and Abdullah traded insults at the Arab summit.

Alamoudi, the former head of the American Muslim Council, has said he met twice with Gadhafi in 2003 to discuss the plot, U.S. officials say.

In Tripoli, Libya's foreign minister strongly denied the allegations, which come at a sensitive time for Libya. Gadhafi agreed in December to dismantle Libya's nuclear weapons programs. The United States soon lifted a ban on travel to Libya and later took steps to restore trade and investment ties. (AP)

European Vote Seen as Referendum on Leaders

25 countries to cast ballots for delegates to European Parliament

LONDON | People across Europe started casting ballots Thursday to elect their delegates to the European Parliament.

The elections are the first for the parliament since the European Union expanded May 1 by adding 10 new members. Some 14,670 candidates in 25 nations are running for 732 seats.

The voting began Thursday in Britain and the Netherlands. Ireland and the Czech Republic were to vote Friday, but most of the 25 nations got to the polls Sunday.

In Britain, some people will use their vote to protest Prime Minister Tony Blair's decision to join the Iraq war. In France, the opposition Socialists are likely to get a boost from voters angry about economic reforms.

The European Parliament,

A girl waits as people vote in the British colony of Gibraltar, which is participating in its first European Parliament vote.

based in both Strasbourg, France, and Brussels, Belgium, has steadily gained power since the first elections in 1979. Even so, many voters don't see it as having much effect on their lives and voter turnout has been steadily decreasing. (AP)

Pakistani General Survives Attack on Convoy in Karachi

KARACHI, PAKISTAN | Attackers with assault rifles and bombs ambushed the motorcade of Karachi's top general Thursday, killing 10 people but missing their prime target in the latest terrorist assault in Pakistan's volatile commercial capital.

Lt. Gen. Ahsan Saleem Hayat was "perfectly all right," army spokesman Maj. Gen. Shaukat Sultan said.

Six soldiers, three policemen and a bystander were killed. The attackers came under fire from soldiers in the convoy and fled.

Investigators identified no suspects, but suspicion immediately fell on Islamic extremists, angered by Pakistan's efforts in support of the U.S.-led war on terror. (AP)

Committee OKs Metro Fare Hikes

Plan calls for opening system 30 minutes earlier on weekdays

WASHINGTON | Riding Metro would cost more, but the subway would open 30 minutes earlier on weekdays as part of the transit agency's proposed fiscal year 2005 operating budget.

The Metro Budget Committee on Thursday approved plans to start rail service at 5 a.m. Monday through Friday. They also signed off on a series of fare hikes which — if approved June 17 by the full Metro Board — will bring the minimum subway fare to $1.35 and the local bus fare to $1.25. The maximum peak rail fare would rise to $3.90

Metro would charge peak fare rates from 2 a.m. to 3 a.m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

It would also charge riders on MetroAccess, the federally mandated transportation service for the disabled, up to $4 for travel beyond 3/4 mile from a Metrorail station or bus route. The base MetroAccess fare would go up by a dime to $2.50, but a rider's companion could board trains and buses for free.

Daily parking fees would go up by 75 cents, and monthly reserved spaces would cost $10 more.

Facing an estimated $23.4 million budget shortfall, the committee endorsed $29.2 million in fare hikes. Metro officials said the difference would be used to help pay for services and to lower subsidies paid by jurisdictions served by Metro. CANDACE SMITH (AP)

Small Step Ahead For Dulles Project

WASHINGTON | Extending Metrorail service out to Reston, Va., inched closer toward reality today.

On Thursday, the Federal Transit Administration approved beginning preliminary engineering of the Dulles rail project. FTA officials say it's the second phase of a three-step process before construction can begin.

Virginia's Rail and Public Transportation Department and the private partnership Dulles Transit Partners now get to detail the design, scope and specific cost of the project over the next 15 months. (AP)

A Record-Setting Day for Metrorail

WASHINGTON | Metrorail ridership set a record Wednesday, with many people apparently heeding police advice and using mass transit to avoid a number of road closures during the funeral procession of former President Ronald Reagan.

By the time the system closed,

850,636 trips had been taken, spokesman Steve Taubenkibel said. Previously, the all-time highest ridership day was 811,257 during President Bill Clinton's first inaugural on Jan. 20, 1993. (AP)

Mayor Touts Candidate for Head of D.C. Public Schools

Mayor Anthony Williams said on Thursday that he wants former Long Beach, Calif., schools chief Carl Cohn to come to Washington because he has a proven track record of taking poorly performing schools and turning them into good ones. The mayor says if Cohn and his family agree to move East, the new school chief could be in place by the end of next week. (AP)

Gas Prices Create Rush on Hybrids

Automakers struggle to provide gas-electric cars as demand soars

AUTOMOBILES | Rising gas prices are spurring consumer interest in the Toyota Motor's fuel-saving Prius sedan, but car buyers who want one are in for a tough time.

In the latest sign that demand for the high-tech, gas-and-electric car is growing, some dealers have begun tacking markups of $5,000 or more on top of the car's sticker price of $20,295 to $26,000.

Spots on dealers' waiting lists are showing up on eBay where they are being auctioned for $500 or more.

The interest in the Prius is creating problems for Toyota. Its U.S. arm has a backlog of 22,000 orders that it cannot fill. It recently asked its Japanese headquarters for more Priuses, but is unsure how many it can get. Now, Toyota is yanking ads from cable television to avoid pulling into showrooms customers that it will only have to turn away.

The Prius isn't the only hybrid facing tight supplies. Honda has a 10-day supply of its hybrid-powered Civic in inventory, far fewer than the 65 days' supply that car makers like to have.

The rising popularity of hybrids comes against a backdrop of the recent increase in gasoline prices, which now average more than $2 per gallon in the U.S. Hybrids combine a gas engine with an electric motor and, in the case of the Prius for example, are capable of getting 60 miles per gallon. SHOLNN FREEMAN (WSJ)

European Indies Oppose Sony Merger

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM | A group of independent music labels Thursday blasted Sony and Bertelsmann's plan to create the world's second-largest music company and urged the European Union to take "severe" measures to protect diversity at a critical time for music sales.

"It's much more dangerous to allow market concentration in a weak market, because smaller companies will find it even harder to survive," said Osman Eralp, economic adviser to Impala, which represents some 2,000 independent music companies.

Impala called on the EU to block the merger or demand "severe and broad remedies" to curb potential abuses of market power. (AP)

VOICES FROM THE CAPITOL

Tens of thousands of people waited in line — some for five hours or more — for a chance to view the casket of former President Ronald Reagan as it lies in state in the Capitol Rotunda. A sampling of why they came:

“He was willing to say the things that no one else would say, and that’s what courage is. ... I’d stand in the hot sun for 12 hours to pay my respects.”

— MICHIGAN STATE REP. JACK HOOGENDYK (R), 48, of Kalamazoo County, Mich.

“We were here when he was inaugurated in 1981 and just think the world of him. ... We wouldn’t miss it.”

— BARBARA RIES, 55, of St. Petersburg, Fla., who was there with her husband, John.

“Every time he was on TV, I always felt a little calmer and he was always like grandpa. ... It was his persona, his charisma.”

— PAUL SAN JOSE, 23, of Fairfax, Va.

“He provided leadership at a time when the nation needed it most, and ... reminded everyone what America stood for.”

— TOM SCHROEDER, 30, of Park Ridge, N.J.

Thousands stream past Reagan’s casket ahead of Friday’s national funeral

WASHINGTON | The U.S. capital honored Ronald Reagan on Thursday with a procession by tens of thousands past his casket, quiet prelude to a majestic funeral shaped by his own hand. Visitors from the Reagan-era ranks of power and friendship flocked to his widow’s side.

Boy Scouts and Supreme Court justices, tourists and world leaders were among those who gazed upon his casket in hushed contemplation under the Capitol Dome.

Across from the White House, Nancy Reagan received a stream of visitors drawn from a list of the powerful, then and now.

“To Ronnie,” former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, first to see Mrs. Reagan, wrote in the Blair House condolence book. “Well done, thou good and faithful servant.” Reagan and Thatcher shared a world view, conservative politics and enduring mutual affection. Thatcher and former Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney were joining President Bush and his father Friday in eulogizing Reagan at Washington National Cathedral to close the curtain on the capital’s elaborate state funeral — Washington’s last goodbye before Reagan’s sunset burial on the grounds of his presidential library outside Los Angeles. Former President George H.W. Bush was Reagan’s vice president.

Several years ago, Reagan asked former Sen. John C. Danforth to officiate, the family said. Both Reagans wanted opera music at the funeral.

And so the service will unfold: Danforth officiating, Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O’Connor reading part of a sermon, the elder Bush as a eulogist and Irish tenor Ronan Tynan performing “Ave Maria.”

The Capitol sergeant at arms office, which oversees security in the building, estimated 30,000 people had viewed the casket in the first 10 hours of Reagan’s lying in state. His casket was continuously on view until Friday morning.

CROWDS AND CLOSINGS: An influx of pedestrians and the closure of many downtown streets are expected to snarl traffic during the Reagan funeral services.

Traffic Woes Expected

Street closures likely to cause local delays

WASHINGTON | People should come to see Ronald Reagan’s funeral procession with reverence for the man and patience for the traffic jam it is bound to cause in the nation’s capital Friday, police warned.

The funeral procession is expected to leave Capitol Hill between 10:30 a.m. and 10:45 a.m. Friday. It will travel west on Constitution Avenue, south on 3rd Street, west on Independence Avenue, north on 17th Street, west on Pennsylvania Avenue, north on 22nd Street, west on Massachusetts Avenue, and north on Wisconsin Avenue to the cathedral.

The procession route and intersecting streets will close 30 minutes before the procession, except for selected streets around the cathedral, which will close at 9 a.m., police said. (AP)

A Life in Pictures

Before being elected president of the United States in 1980, Ronald Wilson Reagan had already amassed an impressive resume: radio sports announcer, actor, television performer, two-term governor of California.

With his election at age 69, Reagan inherited a country hobbled by economic uncertainty, still embittered by the legal sins of Watergate and rattled by the capture of 52 American hostages in Iran. He entered the Oval Office as a cheerful crusader, devoting his presidency to winning the Cold War, trying to scale back government and making people believe it was "morning again in America." Over two terms, from 1981 to 1989, Reagan reshaped the Republican Party in his conservative image, fixed his eye on the demise of the Soviet Union and, in the process, tripled the national debt to $3 trillion.

Reagan's policies and personal style earned him ardent admirers and equally passionate detractors, but all would agree that few people, if any, had a greater influence on American life at the end of the 20th century. (EXPRESS)

1911 | Young Ronnie

Ronald Reagan was born Feb. 6, 1911, in Tampico, Ill., the younger of two sons of John and Nellie Reagan. The family moved often during young Ronald's childhood, finally settling down in Dixon, Ill., the place Reagan considered his hometown. During his teen years, Reagan served as a lifeguard in Dixon, and was credited with saving 77 lives. He also held his first elected office there — Dixon High School student body president.

1957 | Leading Man

Reagan's work in Hollywood films led to his first role as a husband, to fellow actor Jane Wyman, in 1940. But the couple, who had two children, divorced in 1949. Another actress would soon become his lifelong leading lady. He met Nancy Davis in 1950. A romance developed, and they were married March 4, 1952. The couple made their only movie together, "Hellcats of the Navy," in 1957. As Reagan's movie career began to stumble — in 1951 he co-starred with a chimpanzee in "Bedtime for Bonzo" — he rose to become president of the Screen Actors Guild. He also grew increasingly active in politics, first supporting Democratic candidates, but later campaigning for Republican presidential candidates Dwight Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956 and Richard Nixon in 1960.

1966 | Gov. Reagan

After making a rousing speech for GOP presidential candidate Barry Goldwater in 1964, Reagan was encouraged to enter politics himself. Two years later, backed by state Republican leaders, he challenged Democratic Gov. Pat Brown. An affable candidate who courted voters with lighthearted charisma, Reagan won in a landslide. His popularity fueled a last-minute bid for the GOP presidential nomination in 1968, but the nod went to Richard Nixon. Reagan mounted a far stronger presidential bid in 1976. He lost the nomination to sitting President Gerald Ford, but set the stage for a triumphant return in 1980.

1937 | On the Air

After graduating from Eureka College in 1932, Reagan worked as a radio announcer and sportscaster at stations in Davenport and Des Moines, Iowa. He earned accolades as a color commentator, creating artful broadcasts Chicago Cubs games based only on telegraph reports from Wrigley Field. While attending Cubs spring training on Catalina Island in California, Reagan made a screen test for Warner Bros. Pictures. By June, he was playing a radio announcer in his first movie, "Love Is on the Air," kicking off a decades-long career as a Hollywood leading man.

1980 | Standard-Bearer

Reagan began his campaign for the GOP nomination with characteristic vigor and emerged with his party's backing to challenge sitting President Jimmy Carter. His toughest Republican opponent, George H.W. Bush, became his running mate — but only after an aborted attempt to have former President Gerald Ford take the number-two spot. With Carter battling a sagging economy and angling for the release of 54 Americans held hostage in Iran, Reagan, to many, offered an optimistic alternative — a leaner government that would battle the economic malaise by giving Americans more money to spend by lowering taxes. He was elected president in a landslide and inaugurated Jan. 20, 1981.

Special Report | Remembering Reagan

1981 | Assassination Attempt

The first crisis of Reagan's presidency erupted with a hail of bullets on March 30, 1981, outside the Washington Hilton hotel. Reagan had been in office only two months when John Hinckley Jr., a 25-year-old drifter aiming to impress actress Jodie Foster, fired a bullet into the 70-year-old president's body and seriously wounded press secretary James Brady, a police officer and a Secret Service agent. The wounds were serious; the bullet lodged in Reagan's left lung, within an inch of his heart, and it took two hours for surgeons to remove it. But Reagan responded with characteristic humor, quipping to his wife, Nancy, "Honey, I forgot to duck."

1987 | Cold Warrior

The volatile political rivalry between the United States and the communist Soviet Union had dominated world politics for four decades before Reagan assumed office, and he, like previous presidents, continued U.S. efforts to chip away at the Soviet domination of Eastern Europe. In a landmark speech on June 12, 1987, Reagan took aim at one of the preeminent symbols of repressive Soviet rule: the wall that cut the city of Berlin into democratic and communist halves. Standing at the Brandenburg Gate along the massive concrete structure, Reagan motioned toward the wall behind him and aimed his remarks squarely at Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. "General Secretary Gorbachev," he said, "if you seek peace, if you seek prosperity for the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, if you seek liberalization: Come here to this gate! Mr. Gorbachev, open this gate! Mr. Gorbachev, tear down this wall!" The wall finally came down Nov. 9, 1989, just months after Reagan left office.

1988 | Cracks in the Ice

Changes in U.S.-Soviet relations came with a quickening pace in the late 1980s, and Reagan's relationship with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev softened. In 1982, Reagan cautioned Britain's House of Commons against appeasing the "totalitarian evil" of the Soviet empire. But by 1988, Reagan and Gorbachev had signed agreements on weapons reduction and, in May, appeared together during an amiable stroll through Moscow's Red Square. With his vice president, George Bush, mounting what would be a successful effort to replace him, Reagan's time at the helm was near an end. So, too, was Gorbachev's. The Soviet Union would ultimately crumble in 1991.

1985 | Riding the Storms

Reagan often found comfort in vacationing at his California retreat, Rancho del Cielo. One of his chief diversions there was horseback riding. Reagan friend William P. Clark told Knight-Ridder newspapers this week that Reagan used his time in the saddle to take his mind off weightier matters, once quipping, "There's nothing better for the inside of a man than the outside of a horse." During the mid-'80s, he had much to worry about. In his second term, he was dogged by the Iran-Contra scandal—revelations that he authorized secret arms sales to Iran while seeking Iranian aid to gain release of American hostages in Lebanon. Some of the money was used to aid rebels fighting the leftist government of Nicaragua.

1992 | Fond Farewell

After 55 years in the public eye, Reagan bid his final televised farewell during the Republican National Convention in 1992. During the speech, he threw his support once again behind George Bush, but concluded with a wish for his own legacy: "Whatever else history may say about me when I'm gone, I hope it will record that I appealed to your best hopes, not your worst fears, to your confidence rather than your doubts." Reagan penned his last goodbye to the American people in 1994, revealing he had been diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease, and was prepared to begin "the journey that will lead me into the sunset of my life."

BASEBALL | Roger Clemens had already accomplished more than enough during a career that should put him in the Hall of Fame.

Look at him now, just the same.

The Rocket is 9-0 and ranked 14th with 319 victories after beating Seattle 1-0 Tuesday night. Yet he insisted the best thing about this season is that he's helping his hometown Houston Astros win.

"We're not playing well right now, but we're finding our way through certain situations," Clemens said. "That's what we're going to have to do if we're going to take that next step, go to that next level."

The 41-year-old Clemens became the oldest pitcher to win his first nine decisions, allowing three hits in 6 2-3 shutout innings. Dennis Martinez was 40 when he started 9-0 for Cleveland in 1995, when he finished 12-5.

Clemens didn't have his 97 mph fastball but kept the Mariners off balance by mixing in sliders as he outdueled Joel Pineiro.

The six-time Cy Young Award winner struck out seven to boost his career total to 4,187. He walked a season-high five but improved to 23-14 against Seattle, the most wins by a pitcher against the Mariners.

The victory moved Clemens past Phil Niekro on the career list.

Nolan Ryan and Don Sutton are tied for 12th with 324 victories, and it won't be long at this rate before Clemens passes them, too.

"The guys I've tied or passed, it's just icing on the cake for me," said Clemens, who ended a brief retirement over the winter to join the Astros. "I felt anything that happened this year was just a great deal of fun. I never expected to be here."

Clemens has won two straight starts after a skid — by his stan-

HEADING TO THE HALL

A few reasons why Roger Clemens will be inducted into baseball's Hall of Fame:

- 319 career wins
- 3.17 career ERA
- 46 career shut outs
- 117 complete games
- 6 Cy Young awards
- In 1986, Clemens won 24 games, was named AL MVP and All-Star Game MVP
- 5 times, Clemens had at least 250 strike outs in a season
- Named to All-Century team

dards — of three straight games without a decision from May 16-28. He won seven straight starts to open the season.

"He's been phenomenal this year," teammate Craig Biggio said.

SOCCER | Something in the Water Bottled water given to a visiting soccer team by Akrotis, an Athens squad, was found to have been spiked with a powerful depressant, according to tests conducted after mysterious illnesses struck members of two teams. After Akrotis played Kalitheia on March 20, the Kalitheia coach was hospitalized for three days after losing consciousness. After an April 17 game between host Akrotis and Lonikos, at least one player from the visiting team was hospitalized and doctors were unsure what caused him to pass out. Greece's Food Inspection Agency said Wednesday it had found that a hypodermic needle was used to inject the drug haloperidol into the Lonikos water bottle. (AP)

Beckham out to prove he's still one of soccer's elite in Euro contest

SOCCER | The fashion, the marketing, the big money, the rock-star aura —they are all put aside now.

For the next three weeks, David Beckham is strictly about soccer. And England's captain will have no better stage than the European championship to show he is not only healthy but that his soccer credentials are among the world's best.

"We should be going into these competitions believing that we can win it, and I believe we can," he said. After playing in England's final tuneup game, a 6-1 rout of Iceland on Saturday, Beckham limped off the field with an injured right ankle and went to the hospital to have a cyst on his back removed.

Two years ago, Beckham broke his left foot a month before the 2002 World Cup. He recovered and played well, but England lost in the quarterfinals to eventual champion Brazil.

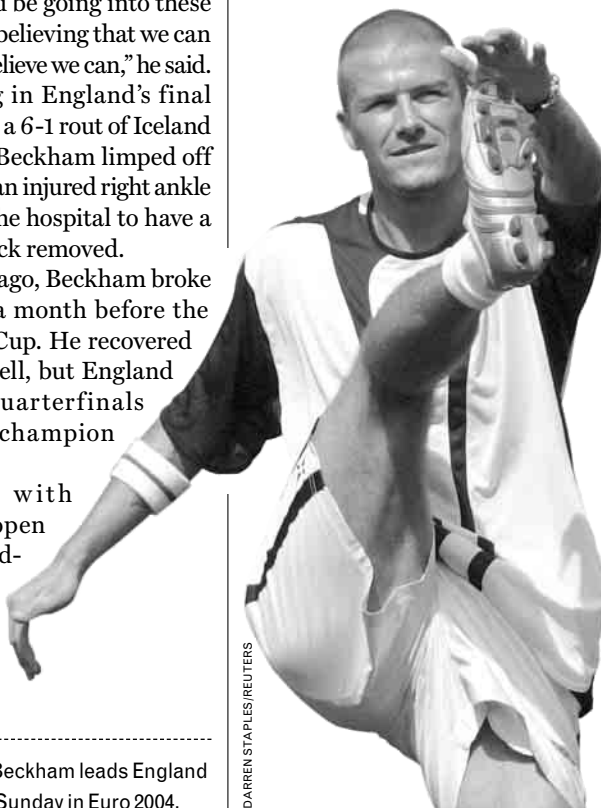

Now, with England to open against defending champion France on Sunday in Lisbon, he's trying to play down the ankle injury.

"So far, definitely, people have been talking about my injury but there isn't one," Beckham said.

Beckham has made 66 international appearances for England and scored 13 goals. He is the team's most experienced player, along with Gary Neville and Paul Scholes.

"The players that we've got in this team, we've got a few experienced players, which I am now, unfortunately," Beckham said with a smile. "And we've got a lot of young talented players." KRISTYNA RUDZKI (AP)

D.C. Divas take perfect record into season finale

FOOTBALL | They call themselves the big girls, and when the five offensive linemen on the D.C. Divas take their place at the line of scrimmage, very few would dispute that nickname.

Weighing in at a collective 1,115 pounds, very few have been able to stop them this spring either.

In their fourth season of playing in the National Women's Football Association, a professional organization composed of 34 teams located as far away as Texas, the D.C. Divas (7-0) are undefeated.

The Divas will finish their reg-

The outcome of the game will determine if the Divas receive a bye in the first round of playoffs.

"If there is one difference that sets us apart, it's the offensive line," said quarterback Allyson Hamlin, who threw five touchdown passes last Saturday. "We have some talented offensive weapons, but we would have never been able to do what we did this season without the line." WILL TOUSSAINT

Malone Says He Tore His Ligament

NBA FINALS | Karl Malone isn't a doctor, but he knows his body. Before Thursday's Game 3 of the NBA Finals, Malone said the knee injury he sustained in Game 2 is exactly the same as the injury that sidelined him for 39 games during the regular season: a torn ligament.

Malone has chosen not to undergo an MRI on his right knee for an injury the Lakers are calling a sprained medial collateral ligament. The team also used that description when Malone originally injured the knee in December, though it turned out he had a torn ligament. (AP)

BCS Adds 5th Game for Championship

COLLEGE FOOTBALL | The Bowl Championship Series will play five games at the current four sites starting in the 2006 season, with the bowl that hosts the national championship game also hosting an earlier contest.

Under the new model, the championship game will still rotate between the Sugar, Fiesta, Orange and Rose bowls, but it will be played about a week after the other four games and will have its own unique name. (AP)

Pretty Scary in Pink

'Stepford Wives' is a satire, a statement and not much of a film

FILM | "The Stepford Wives," begins promisingly enough as a fast and funny satirization of a lily-white, Lilly Pulitzer existence, and it looks great. The houses, clothes and cars are dead-on, and everything is bathed in picture-perfect light.

After about an hour, it takes an abrupt turn to a darker tone, and the last half-hour feels tacked on. Ultimately, it lands with a thud.

The original 1975 film, based on Ira Levin's novel and starring Katharine Ross, was played as a horrifying cautionary tale during a time of burgeoning women's independence. The men in town replaced their wives with happy, homemaking robots; if you ran a white-gloved finger across it, you wouldn't find a speck of irony.

Here, director Frank Oz and screenwriter Paul Rudnick go for big, broad laughs, then they shift sharply and try to make heavy statements about society and gender roles.

Nicole Kidman is the source of enlightenment this time as Joanna Eberhart, a TV network president. After Joanna gets fired and suffers a nervous breakdown, her husband, Walter Kresby (Broderick), packs up the family and moves them from Manhattan to sunny Stepford, "Connecticut's family paradise."

On arrival, she's a little freaked out by her perfectly coifed neighbors; Claire Wellington (Close), who functions as the town's prom queen, leads the other women in giddy aerobics exercises based on household tasks.

But Walter likes that the women are beautiful and domestic. He also likes the men's association, an overgrown frat house where the guys sit around all day, smoking cigars, drinking whiskey and playing video games.

Joanna finds fellow skeptics in two other new neighbors: sarcastic writer Bobbie Markowitz (Midler) and flamboyant architect Roger Bannister (Roger Bart). One by one, though, they undergo Stepfordization, too. (Roger's partner, a Republican, turns him into a generic candidate for state office in a Brooks Brothers suit.)

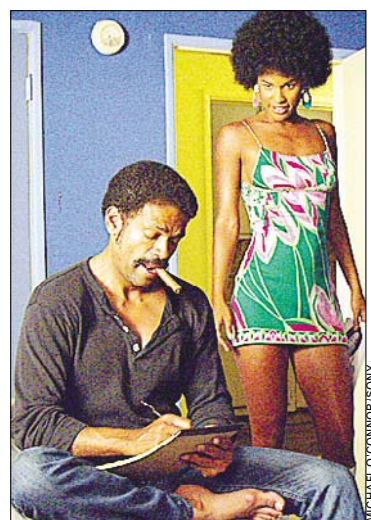

As Joanna investigates further, the film's misogyny and irrelevance become crystal clear — and attempts at dark humor from this point feel flatter than an undercooked soufflé. CHRISTY

Family Matters

FILM | In 1971, Melvin Van Peebles, already one of the first black directors to have a film in general release (with "Watermelon Man"), scorched screens across America with "Sweet Sweetback Baadasssss Song," a surreal odyssey in which Van Peebles played a pimp on the lam after becoming involved in the killing of a brutal cop.

"Baadasssss!", Mario Van Peebles's corrosive yet often hilarious account of the epic struggle his father endured in making

"Sweetback," has a mythic quality, but it rings true to its time and circumstances, and it explodes with passion, humor and sheer nerve.

In adapting his father's book on the film's making and in playing his father, Mario Van Peebles has done his parent proud and in the process has made his most accomplished film to date.

The key to "Baadasssss!"'s appeal is that it sees the humor, some of it bleak, some of it uproarious, in Van Peebles's escalating adversities, which inevitably include racism, while not flinching in depicting the obsessive, ruthlessly single-minded man Van Peebles became.

With his co-writer Dennis Haggerty and his cameraman Robert Primes, Van Peebles has created a handsome yet gritty film with a strong narrative thrust, punchy dialogue and vivid characterizations. The film is a mosaic of intricate scenes and situations combined with running commentary, but it flows smoothly, all of a piece.

In its spirit and execution, "Baadasssss!" lives up to its forebear. KEVIN THOMAS (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

FRI. How the mighty have fallen. Local favorites VERTICAL HORIZON have moved from arenas to community festivals; catch them at Celebrate Fairfax! in the County Government Center. ... It's late-'90s-SoCal-skater-punk throwback night at Nissan Pavilion with NO DOUBT and BLINK 182 sharing the bill. ... ROONEY brings power-pop sensibilities and unkempt indie charm to the 9:30 Club. Opening are fellow Californians OZMA and ex-Taking Back Sunday members STRAYLIGHT RUN.

Blink-182's been too busy poking holes in their faces to make any frat-pop.

SAT. SISTER HAZEL, at the 9:30 Club, hasn't been able to escape its 1997 smash "All for You." These lite-rock jams evoke simpler days when Hootie ruled the charts. ... CITIZEN COPE has crafted an inimitable style based on folk, soul and hip-hop. Check out his curious blend at Iota. ... DIDO, at DAR Constitution Hall, may be best known for Eminem's sample of her song "Thank You," but her solid, lush, electronic pop holds its own.

SUN. It has arrived: MADONNA takes her big-budget ct to the MCI Center. Your $300 ticket finances sequins, costumes and sweaty dancers, but, alas, no cone bras. ... Masked villain MF DOOM, opening for TALIB KWELI at 9:30, is one of the hottest names in underground hip-hop. His tongue-twisting rhymes will leave you dumbfounded. ... The criminally underappreciated GRANT LEE PHILLIPS, at the Birchmere, shed his former band mates and has formed a solid solo career. PETER DENTON

Triple Threat: Lucas Belvaux's "Trilogy" packs three separate-but-linked films full of haunting intersections and fascinating characters. Desson Thomson sorts it all out. | Weekend

Big Time: Ann Hornaday sizes up David Twohy's "The Chronicles of Riddick," in which everything, from star Vin Diesel's biceps to the size of the army he faces, is huge. | Style

Bad Kitty! The best thing Desson Thomson can say about the live action/CGI "Garfield" movie is that it's harmless and will not offend anyone of any age. Meow! | Weekend

MARLENE BERGAMO

CELL BLOCKED: Survival of the fittest.

CARANDIRU (R, 145 minutes) Powerful, if numbing; but what movie about a massacre isn't? What's more provocative is the extent to which the bad, ugly boys of the Brazilian prison of the title are humanized. So when the bullets fly, we cannot cling to the demonization by which we exile the bad and ugly and imprisoned from our hearts. (SH)

THE DAY AFTER TOMORROW (PG-13, 123 minutes) Considered purely as effects-driven filmed drama, this checks in somewhere in the middle of one of Hollywood's most absurd and least lamented dead genres, the disaster pic of the '70s. It's a little better than "Earthquake" but not as good as "The Towering Inferno" because it doesn't star Steve McQueen and Paul Newman. (SH)

HARRY POTTER AND THE PRISONER OF AZKABAN (PG, 142 minutes) It's not just the child actors who look all grown up in this latest installment of the popular series; the filmmaking does, too. Alfonso Cuarón has made a grim, atmospheric movie that is so much more sophisticated than its predecessors, both visually and in terms of storytelling, that it's hard to believe the source material is the same. "Azkaban" excels at capturing—and elaborating on—the details that make the books such a delight. (NICOLE ARTHUR)

SAVED! (PG-13, 92 minutes) In this religious satire set at an evangelical high school, first-time filmmaker Brian Dannelly and co-writer Michael Urban have created a sort of born-again "Mean Girls," wherein the usual adolescent cliques, cruelties and anxieties about conformity are given an even higher charge than usual by the looming threat of burning in hell. (AH)

SHREK 2 (PG, 93 minutes) Given the frequency of allusions to movies and television in "Shrek 2"—a sequel that is better and funnier than the original, which as you may recall, was pretty darn good and funny to begin with—it is wickedly appropriate that most of it takes place in a land that, for all intents and purposes is

HAIR GEL, KID: Harry takes advice.

Hollywood. Mike Myers and Cameron Diaz develop their characters into much more than cartoons. "Shrek 2" is about fantasy, but its characters are rousing, affecting—ly real. (MO)

SOUL PLANE (R, 86 minutes) There is a terrific lowbrow summer movie hidden somewhere in here. The film promises to be "Airplane" by way of the 'hood, a fusillade of jokes and sight gags in the tradition of America's finest bonehead comedies. Instead, it's only fitfully funny, and it makes up for what it lacks in genuine humor by overdosing viewers with outrageous sexuality and outsized stereotypes. (AH)

TROY (R, 165 minutes) There's no doubt that "Troy" is Homeric, but the Homer in question seems to be Simpson. The movie boasts his virtues: It means to please, it's good-hearted and lazy, it always takes the easy way out, and it wants you to like it. Its seas aren't wine-dark but Aspen-pale. (SH)

Ray Charles Dies at 73

APPRECIATION | Ray Charles, the Grammy-winning crooner who blended gospel and blues in such crowd-pleasers as "What'd I Say" and ballads like "Georgia on My Mind," died Thursday, a spokesman said. He was 73.

He died at his home in Beverly Hills surrounded by his family, said spokesman Jerry Digney.

Blind by age 7 and an orphan at 15, Charles spent his life shattering any notion of musical boundaries and defying easy definition. A gifted pianist and saxophonist, he dabbled in country, jazz, big band and blues, and put his stamp on it all with a deep, warm voice roughened by heartbreak from a hard-scrabble childhood in the segregated South.

Charles won nine of his 12 Grammy Awards between 1960

Singer-pianist Ray Charles's appeal spanned generations and genres.

and 1966, including the best R&B recording three consecutive years ("Hit the Road Jack," "I Can't Stop Loving You" and "Busted").

His versions of other songs are also well known, including "Makin' Whoopee" and a stirring "America the Beautiful."

"Music was one of my parts ... Like my blood," Charles said in his 1978 autobiography, "Brother Ray." "It was a force already with me when I arrived on the scene. It was a necessity for me, like food or water." (AP)

Television

ON TV THIS WEEKEND

LIZA FROM A TO Z
BIOGRAPHY (Fri., 8 p.m., A&E) Talented and troubled actress and singer Liza Minnelli has spent the better part of five decades trying to get out from under the shadow of her doomed mother. This superior "Biography" is filled with recollections from Minnelli as well as legions of life-time friends and admirers, including songwriters John Kander and Fred Ebb ("Cabaret"), and actors Mia Farrow, Marisa Berenson, Joel Grey and Michael York. While her difficult times are chronicled here, the show accentuates the positive.

Minnelli

IT'S ON. NO, IT'S NOT. YES, IT IS.
Do you know all there is to know about the lying game? Deception and its detection are the whole point of FAKE OUT (Fri., 11 p.m., Court TV). Contestants receive cash prizes for successful deceptions and for being able to catch others in fibs.

GOLD-DIGGERS
KING SOLOMON'S MINES (Sat., 5 p.m., Hallmark) Patrick Swayze stars in a new adaptation of H. Rider Haggard's novel of African myth, mystery and murder. Swayze presents a world-weary image as the great white hunter Allan Quatermain. The meandering plot takes Quatermain from calming a rampaging elephant on an African safari to a child custody battle in London. Yup, I bet they had a lot of those in Victorian England. In the city, he is hired by Elizabeth Maitland (Alison Doody) to return to the untamed continent and search for her father, who's been kidnapped by tribesman who covet his map to the mythical mines.

WE ARE THE WORLD
BOOMER NATION (Sun., 9 p.m., A&E) spends two hours examining the impact and legacy of the 76 million Americans born between 1946 and 1964. Author and host Steven Gillon hopes to challenge some myths. Long derided as hedonistic, many "boomers" have embraced religion, particularly evangelical faiths, with a greater fervor than their parents. Charitable giving also increased as boomers came of age. But "Boomer" ultimately proves that it's impossible to pigeonhole — or document — any generation.

OUT FROM 'UNDER'
SIX FEET UNDER (Sun., 9 p.m., HBO) The deliciously dark and irrepressibly funny funeral-home soap opera returns for a fourth season. Ruth celebrates her marriage to George (James Cromwell) with a night of loud consummation that sets everyone in the house on edge. Bickering lovers David and Keith try to start over, once again. Claire tells her old boyfriend that she made a life-altering choice without consulting him, while Federico hunts down a priest in order to confess his adulterous indiscretion. Brenda eyes her handsome new neighbor (Justin Theroux), and Nate struggles to find a way to dispose of his dead wife's body that remains true to her wishes while not ticking off her controlling parents.

Shot through with wit, bracingly honest dialogue and uncomfortably hilarious moments, "Six Feet Under" remains the gold standard by which all other television dramas are measured.

CULT CHOICE
INVASION OF THE BEE GIRLS (Fri., 8 p.m., Flix) An FBI agent discovers a hive of honeys who lure men to their deaths in this 1973 shocker. Oh death, where is thy stinger? KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

JOB

SUPERVISOR
ADVERTISING SERVICE TEAM

The Advertising Sales Department of The Washington Post is recruiting for an experienced Supervisor to oversee the daily operation of its Recruitment Advertising Service Team. We are very interested in reviewing candidates with a strong supervisory background; someone who has a solid track record in developing and motivating effective work teams, and the capacity to handle multiple priorities in a high volume, deadline-driven work environment. Strong interpersonal and leadership skills, as well as experience in customer service, conflict resolution, consensus building, problem-solving, production, and quality control are all critical to success in this position. Some familiarity with advertising sales and credit, collections and/or contracts is strongly preferred. This position will supervise ad ordering, trafficking of ad materials, and service/billing.

This position is responsible for: setting individual and group performance goals for the Advertising Service Representatives; scheduling and managing the Team's daily work flow; working closely with the Service Team and Sales to solve customers' questions; and selecting, training, and coaching staff.

If you are qualified for this position, please fax a cover letter and resume, including your salary requirements, to

SCOLDINGS

Older, Weirder and Uncut

A Paris court on Thursday convicted former starlet BRIGITTE BARDOT of inciting racial hatred for portraying Muslims in a negative light in a book, comparing them, as the court said, to "invaders, cruel and barbaric." Bardot and her publishing house, Editions du Rocher, were fined $6,050 each. She had risked a year in jail. (AP)

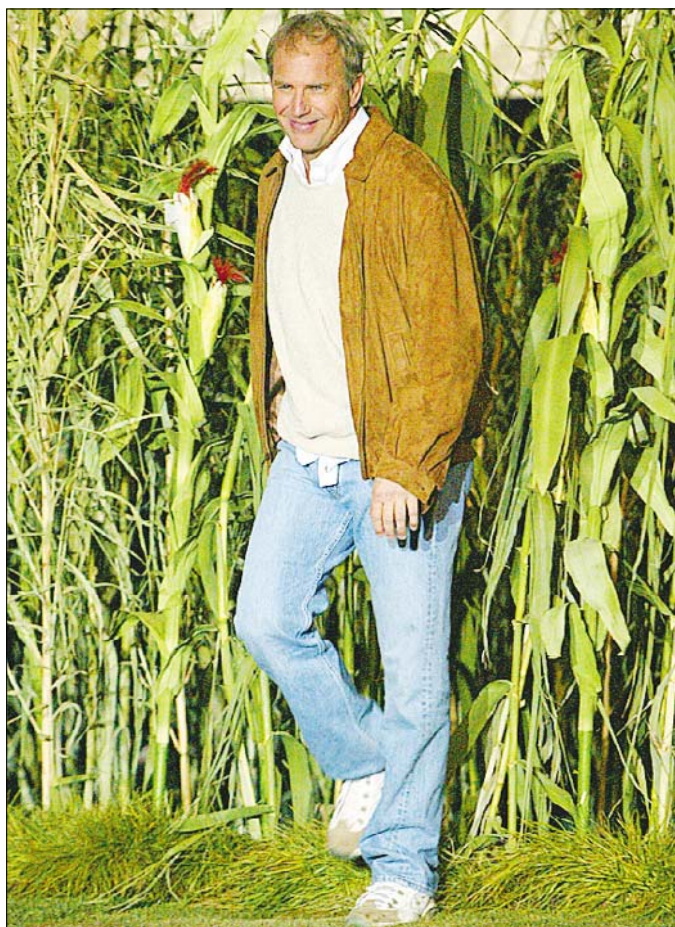

All Morrissey ever talks about is death. Don't take it personally, America.

AFFRONTS

Big Mouth Strikes Again

MORRISSEY interrupted a Dublin concert Saturday with news of former President Reagan's death, adding that he wished President George W. Bush had died instead, the Manchester Evening News reported. Thousands of people, 90 percent from the United States, contacted the newspaper's Web site to complain. (AP)

CROPS

If You Pay Him, He Will Come

KEVIN COSTNER emerged from rows of cornstalks on Wednesday as part of the celebration for the DVD release of the 15th-anniversary edition of "Field of Dreams." Universal Studios recreated the famous baseball field for the event. (AP)

CAMPAIGNS

'Passionate Rock Anthems Are the Future of Sydney!'

The former lead singer of the rock band Midnight Oil announced Thursday that he will run for Australian Parliament with the opposition Labor Party — and party leaders said he could even become a government minister someday. PETER GARRETT, a committed environmental activist with a distinctive bald pate, had long used Midnight

Oil as a forum for his political views. The band broke up in 2002 after 25 years. Labor had asked Garrett to run, and he'll try for a seat from a Sydney district that is a Labor stronghold. (AP)

Ali G invited 2003 Harvard grad Natalie Portman to "play with [his] light saber."

GUESTS

Crimson Snide

British comedian ALI G donned a crimson tracksuit to speak at Harvard's Class Day, which precedes graduation day, on Wednesday. "You is da most cleverestest students in America," he announced to students and their parents, reported the Boston Globe. Ali G lauded the school for "that really fit honey from Star Wars," noted the Harvard Crimson, and concluded with a shout of "Big up yaself, Princeton!" (EXPRESS)

BOO-BOOS

Some Much Kneaded Rest

BRITNEY SPEARS injured her knee during a video shoot and was hospitalized for arthroscopic surgery, her record label said Wednesday. Spears was taken to a hospital after hurting herself late Tuesday, Jive Records said in a statement. An MRI showed floating cartilage in her knee. The injury occurred after Spears completed outdoor scenes for the video of her new single, "Outrageous," with rapper Snoop Dogg in the New York City borough of Queens. Spears was doing choreography when her knee gave out, Jive said. (AP)

TO THE EDITOR

IN RESPONSE TO "Party of the People" in Thursday's WeekendPass section: Why is it that when any gay event is in the spotlight, the media have to show a ridiculous picture depicting either outrageous drag queens or men dressed in skin-tight leather?

Photographs such as these merely perpetuate the same, stale stereotypes that others have about gay people.

Why can't the media show photographs of your average, everyday gay person? Is it because it would be too shocking to realize that we are just like everyone else?

—BRYAN NORMAN
Arlington, Va.

WHAT A HELPFUL publication Express is. Not only did you report on the disturbing trend of induced fainting among middle school students in Maine (EyeOpeners, June 10), but you even gave instructions on how to accomplish the feat.

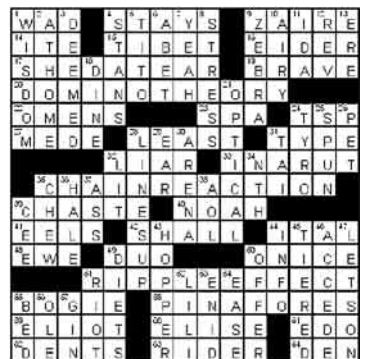

Does that mean we can look forward to future educational pieces like how to build a dirty bomb or create an Internet virus? Come on folks, let's not forget about responsible journalism.

—CHARLIE STILTON
Amissville, Va.

Horoscope | Stella Wilder

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Take care you are not listening solely to your instincts; rational consideration must be a part of any important negotiation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — The best way to get what you want is to put it all on the line in an honest, straightforward manner. Don't try to trick anyone.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You know how to make things happen — and there is something very big just around the corner waiting for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — You'll get the hang of it — and have time to put your new-found skills to the test. Enjoy the success that is bound to come your way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — You'll want to surround yourself only with those who know how to do the best job under pressure. Time is short, and your schedule full.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — It is important for you to clarify what it is you really want, and to streamline your efforts to guarantee that you are moving toward your goal.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Don't put yourself or someone you love in jeopardy simply out of frustration or spite. Use caution.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — This will be a busy day for you, but don't neglect those who come calling on you. Make time for social interaction.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Trust your impulses, and be sure that those who are standing in your path will respond to reasonable talk and make no unexpected demands.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — What you are after can be yours whether you have money to burn or not. Your financial situation is of limited importance.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — You may be feeling run-down and out-of-sorts after a busy and difficult week. Someone close to you should be able to offer you the remedy.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — A question of taste must not be allowed to come between you and a close friend. To each his own, remember — and yours may be unusual.

Funeral Flap

From washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Post Metro section columnist MARC FISHER was online Thursday to discuss the Reagan funeral and a name for a local baseball team, if there ever is one.

The crowd seemed to be applauding at one point as Reagan's caisson was being pulled along. Was this the American "booboisie" giving in to its uncultivated instincts or was I missing something?

It rubbed me kind of wrong too, especially when I saw crowds applauding Nancy Reagan — she deserves all the respect and honor folks can muster, but applause seems terribly out of step with the proper tone.

Applause is inappropriate for Nancy Reagan? Who would you have us applaud, Britney Spears?

Because applause is celebratory. The power of silence at a funeral can be emotionally shattering. So it is in a funeral procession as well.

The downtown location is the only one that makes sense for a major league baseball team. And the team should not be named the Senators, since D.C. hasn't got any. I would like to propose the Starlings — appropriate to the region, and it can be shortened to "The Stars." Whatcha think?

Starlings? I dunno. Sounds like a name for a soccer team to me. I never got the bird names thing, though, of course, Cardinals is a fabulous name with a great heritage. And Orioles works too. But Blue Jays is really lame. I know I'm in the minority and destined to lose on this one, but I want our team to be the Senators.

How about the Potomac Snakeheads?

Now you're talking — the Snakeheads, a team on which each player thinks he's uniquely essential and the only key to victory. The perfect Washington team name!
